

March is start of Autumn trees and shrubs changing their colours.

Plant out seedlings of cauliflower, cabbages, brussel sprouts to get them growing for the winter. Seeds of lettuce, turnips, radish and white onions can be sown.

Seedlings of lettuce and onions can also go in now.

Flower Seedlings-

Alyssum, pansy, viola, stocks, poppies, calendula, carnations, dianthus, polyanthus, larkspur, snapdragon, static, verberna. Sow seeds of Virginian stock where there are to grow, they make a nice boarder plant, flower white, cream, soft pink and lavender. Seedling of wallflower, sweet Williams can also go in now.

Pereimial plants such as hollyhock, Canterbury bells, aquilegia (columbines), deiphiniums and pentstemons, can be planted now.

Watch for aphids and caterpillars on roses. You can spray them with Chilli spray or garlic spray or Pyrethrum spray.

Propogate cutting of geraniums, fuschia, and hydrangeas. I use 1 part coarse sand to 2 parts potting mix. Put at least 2 eyes (buds) in the mixture and 2-3 eyes out, making sure the mixture never dries out. I place a plastic bag over the top of the pot, it forms a mini glass house.

You can plant deciduous berry plants now. Berries grow best in areas with a cool winter. Berries plants require a sunny position for them to produce good amounts of fruit. Autumn fruiting raspberries need full sun to ripen before the first frosts.

Most berry varieties prefer soil that is well drained and fairly fertile with plenty of manure or compost worked into the soil. All, but particularly the blueberry benefit from a acidic soil. A great tip is to mulch around your blueberry with pine needles.

Blueberry

It is rich in nutrients and high in antioxidants. All blueberry grow to about 2m tall. They begin cropping about two years after planting. Brightwell produces large crops and is a good choice for the subtropics.

Bluerose is a delicious when eaten fresh but also cooks extremely well.

Sharpsblue is a low-chill variety or blifeberry that is self-pollinating.

Raspberry

Producing strongly for up to a decade, this cane fruit comes in many different varieties which, planted together provide multiple harvests throughout the year. Will need pruning to keep from going wild. Chilcotin is a summer-fruiting berry that produces a high yield of fruit.

Heritage bears a light summer crop followed by generous amounts of fruit in autumn. Chilliwak is a summer fruiting berry that holds fruit well so you can harvest it every days at premium ripeness.

Boysenberry

The tart juicy wine red to almost black fruit on this thorny plant has a dusty coating and distinct smell. It is exceptional when eaten fresh but also makes a great jam. This berry grows well in warmer climates. It grows wild like blackberries.

Youngberry

A hybrid between the blackberry and dewberiy, this vigorous, trailing bramble produces sweet juicy purple- black berries in summer. It trailing canes grow to 6-7m long. The plant reaches full production after about three years, and needs protection from hot winds.

Loganberry

A cross between blackberry and raspberry this is suited to warmer areas. When ripe the cylindrical berry is dusky purple-red. The fragrant fruit sweeten when ripened by the sun. Eat fresh or cooked as a preserve or dessert.

Thornless Blackberry

Unlike its prickle cousin, this berry is non-invasive. Good in warmer areas, it has fibrous roots and large fruit, and is thinner caned than a raspberry.

CHILLI SPRAY

This will kill chewing and sucking insects on contact only. Can also knock off the good guys.

Chop 4 long onions, 4 chillies and 2 garlic cloves and place in a bowl, cover with warm soapy water and leave to seep for 24 hours.

Strain off liquid and keep.

Add 5litre of water. It is now ready to use. Note the mixture keeps for weeks stored in a screw top jars in a cool dark spot Mark the jar clearly.
