August 2019 Rainfall

At our place we ended up receiving an extra 7mm of rain for a total of 18.5mm for August.

September 2019 Rainfall

Things were not looking good for rain at our place up to Sunday the 15th with only 3.5mm rain measured. However, that all changed Monday night the 16th with 35mm in the gauge Tuesday morning plus a lump of snow.

I knew it got cold Monday night and was surprised with the whiteness and amount of snow that had fallen. However, our dam is full and the ground got a good soaking from the rain and with the thawing of the snow.

All up at our place we have received 38.5mm of rain, so far. I know some areas have received at least 10mm or more than us.

In our garden

We are still going through a steep learning curve in regards to growing and maintaining plants in our plastic covered grow tunnel.

Still have not pruned our roses or grapes and now we have all the broken branches to remove of the bushes, trees, fences and ground, thanks to the snow.

Bird Life

The magpies are still raiding the chook pellets and are currently engaged in aerial combat and fighting on the ground. While they are bluing with each other they are not bothering us, not that they do anyway. Possibly due to the free food in the form of chook pellets.

A different larger size duck has been visiting our dam for the last few weeks. When he first turned up there was a pair of them but lately only the drake has been visiting. The last few years they used to visit a small dam up near Bullamalita Road. I do know the male visits the dam up the back of my place a lot, maybe the female is nesting or has young on that dam?

My canaries were showing lots of interest in breeding early this year but the drop of snow might slow them down – might! Every year for the last 6 they have come into condition earlier and earlier – climate change? I'm living in hope I can avoid breeding after the end of December due to the hot weather.

The fices have not stopped breeding with young Red Billed Firefinches (Ruddies) a regularity, and the male Jacarini Finch has not shed his black suit.

Cake Auction Saturday 10th August

Through the generosity of the patronage at the Can-Assist fund raising day supporting the cake auction, raffle, chocolate wheel, donations and canteen we will be donating $3581.75 to the Goulburn Can-Assit group.

A busy long weekend for Nerriga.

Nerriga Garden Club

Today we all rolled up to Gar-den the home of Gary and Denise and after a sumptuous morning tea we started to help / hinder them move stuff out of sheds etc for the upcoming garage sale. It is amazing what you can accumulate in a period of 20years or so. Helped of course by receiving the proceeds of one's parents lives when they shuffle off the mortal coil. With rain and thunderstorms forecast for Sunday there was a need to provide cover for many of the items. Denise also encouraged us to lift plants from her extensive garden as the new owners to be are not gardeners (yet). This rain has now decreased in forecast amount as is the norm this year but we did all get a nice helping of the wet stuff with a bit of icing on top this week so we must be grateful. As a garden group we can shift a fair amount of stuff and we might be available for hire with the right inducement....food, wine and we can provide the good company. Many of us left with goodies stuffed into our cars and utes and hopefully the roll up for the garage trail sales will be good. We then had a superb lunch and did another small stint of moving leaving Denise and Gary with more to do but the 2 grandsons will roll their sleeves up tomorrow. We wish Gary and Denise well on their new adventure when it happens and may even lob in on them on occasion. The plants and shrubs are starting to burst forth so there must be another run of frosts sometime soon but it does feel like Spring now and the birds are busy constructing nests. Happy gardening. Next month's meeting is at a time and place to be announced. More info Kay Hamer kahamer@activ8.net.au or 0248459021 but less reliable. I guess the big talking point in our district is the recent fall of snow, in which we measured 52 mm of rain and snow.

There has never been snow like that which we have just had on this property during my lifetime. True, there has been snow, but it never really settled on the ground.

There was no damage to our living quarters, but that cannot be said for the surrounding area of our land.

There will be no cutting down of trees to provide us with firewood, enough fell of their own accord. Clearing and repairing damaged fence lines will be a priority, the first of which was to clear my access road. Speaking of roads, Lumley Road from my place to the Windellama road was an absolute "war zone", not quite impassable, but nearly.

We are still asking people to come along and join our SES, two people are willing to come to our next meeting, so I have been told, after speaking with them, one of which we met when inspecting damage.

NSW RURAL FIRE SERVICE

Windellama Rural Fire Brigade – Fire Season commenced 1 October 2019

Do you have a plan? Conditions can change quickly and unexpectedly. It is too late to start making a plan the moment you need to use one.

The importance of being prepared was demonstrated when in only a few hours we went from a Very High fire danger concerned about potential fires to assisting the community cleaning up after Windellama's biggest snowfall in living memory. The 17 September snow knocked down a significant number of trees blocking many of our roads. Three Windellama RFS crews were busy first thing that morning clearing trees making the roads safe and providing access. Well done also to a number of residents who were also busy that morning clearing trees.

Congratulations to our Safety Officer and crew leader Thomas Shannon who won the 2019 NSW Young Volunteer of the Year for the South Coast and Southern Inland.

The Young Volunteer Award from the NSW Centre for Volunteering recognises those under 25 whose volunteering has made a significant difference in the lives of others and are making a difference in their community.

Joining us for training this month will be crews from Warringah Headquarters Brigade who will be in the Windellama area for the weekend training focusing on off-road driving, navigation and rural mva's. To make the most of this opportunity we are starting one hour earlier.

'BIRDS OF A DIFFERENT FEATHER'

By Kay Muddiman – Media Officer

No, I'm not referring to those of us who don't conform to what is generally accepted as 'normal', but to those of our feathered friends whose colouring doesn't conform to what is 'normal' for them! I'm sure many of us have seen such a bird and perhaps wondered about it? I know I have. My curiosity was aroused after we saw what we thought at first was an immature magpie with unusual markings, but which never developed into the traditional magpie colourings. We saw it over a period of three or four years, and even when fully mature the colourings never changed. After some research (via Mr. Google of course!) I discovered the reason for this maggie's unusual colouring - it had leucism.

Leucism is an abnormal plumage condition caused by a genetic mutation that prevents pigment, particularly melanin, from being properly deposited on a bird's feathers. As a result, the birds do not have the normal, classic plumage colours, and instead the plumage has several colour changes, including: white patches where the bird should not have any; paler overall plumage that looks faint, diluted or bleached; overall white plumage with little or no colour discernable. The degree of leucism, including the brightness of the white and the extent of pigment loss, will vary depending on the bird's genetic makeup. It can affect the plumage only slightly, or in a major way where the plumage is totally white.

Albinism is another genetic condition that can turn a bird's plumage pale, but there are distinct differences between albino and leucistic birds. Leucism affects only the bird's feathers, and typically only those with melanin pigment – usually dark feathers. A leucistic bird with different colours may show some colours brightly, especially red, orange or yellow, while feathers that should be brown or black are instead pale or white. Some leucistic birds, however, can lose all the pigment in their feathers and are pure white.

Albinism, on the other hand, affects all the pigments, and albino birds show no colour whatsoever in their feathers. Furthermore, an albino mutation also affects the bird's other pigments in the skin and eyes, and albino birds show pale pink or reddish eyes, legs, feet and a pale bill, while leucistic birds often have normally colored eyes, legs, feet and bills. So, if you see a bird that you think may be an albino, check carefully to see if it is only mostly white, and also importantly, take a good look at the eyes!

Leucistic birds face special challenges in the wild. Lighter plumage may rob the birds of protective camouflage and make them more vulnerable to predators such as hawks and feral cats. Because plumage colours play an important role in courtship rituals, birds with leucism may be unable to find strong, healthy mates. Melanin is also an important structural component of feathers, and birds with extensive leucism have weaker feathers that will wear out more swiftly, making flight more difficult and eliminating some of the bird's insulation against harsh weather.

Melanism is a condition caused by a genetic mutation that gives a bird excess amounts of melanin in its feathers. This makes the feathers much darker than normal plumage, and many melanistic birds appear completely brown or black. There are two ways melanism can affect birds' plumage: Normally dark markings are bolder and noticeably 'overrun' their typical boundaries; or all the beginning this month, 26 October at the Windellama Hall, starting at 9.30 am ...

LAST REMINDER

Windellama Landcare is organising a series of workshops on topics concerning the health of our soil:

SOIL HEALTH PROGRAM

After recent requests for expressions of interest in the series, see ALL YOU WANT TO KNOW ABOUT SOILS in August's Windellama news, there were a number of replies indicating areas of interest.

These workshops and discussions (including some on farm visits) will provide advice on technical issues, available support, including financial, for all landholders and land managers in Windellama and adjoining areas. These will be at no cost or minimal cost to participants. The program is being supported by Local Land Services.

The course will require participants to have a soil test undertaken by a designated agency, details about this will be discussed on the 26 October at the first meeting. The soil tests will be free for participants, who will also be provided with an aerial photo of their property.

If you would like to know more please contact Tony Greville grevilles@activ8.net.au

BUSY BEE

On the 25 September eighteen members of the Willoughby Bushcare Group joined Windellama Landcare members in planting some more eucalypts at the Chain of Ponds on Sandy Point Road. One of our members, David Hillhorst, talked about the pin weir which was placed at one end of the Chain of Ponds at an earlier work party. The pin weir slows the flow of water and stops it running down the creek too quickly and causing erosion. It seems to be working well.

David also spoke about the involvement of Windellama Landcare in the preservation of this ancient kind of landscape – the water seeping slowly across the land as it had done for millenniums. David also demonstrated the EIM machine, which detects the salinity of the soil and the subsoil water flows.

We finished the tree planting, and the hearty lunch prepared by Irene and Lloyd, chatted a bit – until the rain came! We all made a hasty retreat! It was a good day.

plumage is darkened and appears dark brown or black. Just like with leucism, melanism can vary for different birds and some individuals will show much darker plumage than normal, while other birds will have less noticeable changes in their colouration, particularly if they already have dark markings.

Whereas leucism can be dangerous for birds because it robs them of camouflage, melanism can actually be beneficial by helping conceal birds more fully. Of course, a bird with melanism may still have difficulty attracting a mate because their colouration is not the expected breeding plumage. Too much melanin in feathers may also rob the birds of some feather flexibility, which could lead to brittle feathers that are subject to damage more easily.

Birds of course aren't the only creatures to be affected by these conditions - I have used them as an example as they are the wildlife that most of us see on a regular basis. However, if you live in the Northern Territory you may come across 'Pearl' - the leucistic crocodile spotted several times in the last couple of years in the Adelaide River!

Should you need advice or help with injured or distressed wildlife, please ring the WIRES Rescue Number 1300 094737. Your call will be logged and directed to the appropriate branch electronically when, as always, our volunteers will be only too happy to assist.

Until next time - take care all.

Cucumbers, zucchini, melons (rock melon and watermelon). Pumpkin, and Squashes.

Capsicums and parsley, and sweet corn ;-(sow in blocks to help with pollination).

Tomato seedling can go in now, but if we have a late frost it will kill them. So if you wish to get them in early make sure you cover with shade cloth or plastic or old window glass .

FERTILIZER

Compost and bulky manures- improves soil structure and biological fertility, slow acting low in nutrients can be smelly. Add when preparing beds and mulching existing beds.

Blood and bone- Gentle, slow feeding encourages beneficial soil organisms. May not contain potassium(k). very slow release. Use when preparing beds and every 3 months.

Organic- based fertilizer- Encourages beneficial soil organism. Slow acting it can be smelly Use Every 6-8 weeks in growing season.

Certified-organic fertilizer- good for soil and environment. Can be relatively expensive. When preparing beds and every 6-8 weeks in growing season.

Inorganic granular fertilizer- Formulations for different plant groups. Can damage plants if not applied correctly. Every 2 months during growing season.

Controlled-release fertilizer- Little risk of damaging plants. Nutrients released as temperatures rise. Tend to be more expensive Good for container plants .Use every 3-6 or 9 months depending on product.

Slow-release fertilizer- Gentle release. Tend to be more expensive, less control over nutrient release than controlled release products, Choose specific formulations for high demand plants. Use every 3 months during growing season.

Willow Glen Gardeners

<http://www.whispersfromwillowglen.blogspot.com>

This month's Garden Club meeting was held at Rob and Robyn's new property at Mount Fairy. Rob and Robyn moved in during March this year and are planning a big Spring planting, as there was very little garden at the existing house and surrounds. Whilst Members were therefore not able to view an established garden, there were plenty of suggestions for future plantings.

The meeting was convened by Irene, as Warren and Judy were not able to attend. Warren and Judy were enjoying a fabulous trip on the Ghan, and we are all waiting eagerly to hear all about their journey.

Another sorely missed member was Lynda, who suffered an accident at her bush firefighter assessment, which saw her hospitalised for over a week. Lynda is home now and recovering well. We are all looking forward to seeing Lynda at the next meeting.

After morning tea, our special guest Kris Nash took us on a paddock walk to identify grasses and weeds. Kris regularly carries out "Land for Wildlife" surveys in the local area, on behalf of the Small Farms Network. Rob and Robyn were very pleased to learn that they have substantial amounts of remnant native vegetation, including kangaroo grass, wallaby grass and microlaena. They are rethinking their plan to spread lime over the paddocks as it may harm these acid-loving species.

Turning to members' gardens: Maria and Peter have been busy planting snapdragons and reported that their spinach was doing well and the bulbs are coming on nicely. They are leaving some areas fallow to allow the soil to recover. Peter and Maria brought along a lot of tall purple iris bulbs for members, which was greatly appreciated.

Caroline's daffodils and hellebores are flowering and providing a great show, especially the hellebores, which flower early and look fabulous, even in dry conditions. Caroline bought along some clumps of Salvias for members, which were eagerly snapped up. Caroline has recently dug in her green manure crop (rocket), which will improve her soil, and covered the bed with weed mat. Lots of worms are visible once you lift the weed mat, which will be of great benefit to her garden. There was some good discussion about how marigolds can assist nematode control and are useful as a rotation crop for vegetables.

Kevin spoke about his success with sprouting grain for cattle feed. He uses barley and wheat seed and achieves approximately 5 kilo of feed for each kilo of seed. The cattle are doing very well with this feed source, but there are potential problems with rats and mice, which love the grain. Effective controls programs for these pests are essential, but the overall results are very good.

Lloyd and Irene reported that their beans and strawberries were coming along nicely but were being eaten by pests. Irene also brought along copies of seed catalogues to share with the members.

Maria was surprised to find that Brussel sprouts, often treated as an annual crop as they die back in winter, will come back in the following year. Her plants are doing well and will soon be producing a good second crop.

The next meeting will be held on Tuesday October 1 at Peter and Maria's house in Lake Bathurst.

New members are welcome and should call Judy on 4844 5350 or 0438 605 821 for details.

Windellama Historical Society from Tom Bryant

ST BARTHOLOMEW'S ANGLICAN CHURCH, WINDELLAMA---160 Celebration

The weekend of 24-25 August saw celebrations to commemorate 160 years of worship at Windellama. The special church service was attended by Bishop the Right Reverend Mark Short. Also attending were descendants of Reverend Robert Cartwright and also the Webb family. Reverend Cartwright's son Richard Cornelius Cartwright was the instigator of St. Bartholomew's Church before he died on Christmas Day 1859 before the church was built.

History of the church.

The Goulburn Herald of 13 April 1859 carried an advertisement calling for tenders for the construction of "a Church at Windellama, of slabs or weatherboards, on a stone foundation, or wholly of stone, with a boarded floor and shingled roof--according to a plan to be seen at Christ Church Parsonage, Bungonia, on a site which will be pointed out by Mr RC Cartwright, of Windellama--will be received up to the 23rd of April proximo." Tenders were to be delivered to Rev. EB Proctor at Bungonia. The successful tender was received from Pinn brothers, builders of Goulburn for a church of stone construction.

The foundation stone of the church was laid at 1 o'clock on 27 October 1859 by JR Styles Esq. JP of Bungonia. Rev. EB Proctor and Rev. Richard Leigh took part in the ceremony as did Messrs. Styles, Fox, Cartwright and others. Afterwards a luncheon was held at Mr Cartwright's and about £7 was collected towards the building fund.

Richard Cartwright died on 25 December 1859 unfortunately not seeing the completion of the church he had put so much effort in to.

A report in the Goulburn Herald of 5 March 1862 states that the church building had progressed to the stage that the roof was on. The cost so far was about £170 with £30 still owing to the builders. The porch and vestry still had to be built. Added to this a fence was to be put around the churchyard and a 12 stalled shed or stable was to be erected for use by worshippers coming from a distance. The cost still to be borne by the community was likely to be £150. A meeting of the Church Building Fund Committee was held at Mrs Cartwright's on 5 March 1862 at which the accounts were audited.

The church although unfinished was opened on 8 June 1862 for the Festival of Holy Trinity when about 100 people were in attendance. The church was described as; a small but neat edifice, erected in the plainest manner of substantial materials, and consists of a nave and chancel, with porch and vestry of common rubble work, plastered inside; framed wooden roof of solid hardwood timber, boarded and shingled, and boarded floor. Open benches of cedar and kneeling stools afford accommodation, as at present arranged, for between fifty and sixty persons; and the chancel is handsomely and suitably furnished.

The opening service consisted of Morning Prayer, Holy Communion and baptism of 2 infants and the conditional baptism of another child of 7 years of age.

The church had been liquidated from debt and removed from private hands and was eligible for consecration. The consecration was carried out on 24 August 1868 by Bishop Thomas.

It is a tribute to the original builders and to the restoration work that has been carried out over the years, the latest being in 1991 that this little church has survived and will go on serving the Windellama community for many years to come.
